THERE'S NOTHING TRUE BUT HEAVEN.

This world is all a fleeting show,
For man's illusion given;
The smiles of joy, the tears of wo,
Deceitful shine, deceitful flow;
There's nothing true but Heaven

And false the light of glory's plume
As falling hues of even,
And love, and hope, and beauty's bloom,
Are blossoms gathered for the tomb;
There's nothing bright but Heaven.

Poor wanderers of a stormy day
From wave to wave are driven,
And fancy's flash, and reason's ray,
Serve but to light the troubled way;
There's nothing calm but Heaven.

A REASON FOR THICK ANKLES.

"Harry, I cannot think," says Dick,
"What makes my ankles grow so thick."
"You do not recollect," says Harry,
"How great a calf they have to carry."

ANTIQUITIES.

Antiquities discovered upon the scite of the old Dolphin Inn, Cambridge, England.

We have purposely forborne from giving any account of the remarkable subterraneous treasure lately discovered in this place, in the hope that the workmen by whom it was brought to light would be induced to give a faithful narrative of the transaction. Some part of this treasure, however, remains yet concealed, and more has perhaps been consigned to the melting pot; we shall not, therefore, delay gratifying the curiosity of our readers.

On Saturday, August 23, as some workmen were digging for the foundation of a building, in the cellar of the Old Dolphin Inn, below the spot once occupied by the late Alderman Newling's Coal-Yard, about 3 feet from the surface they struck into a soil of black mould, above which the ground had been artificially raised, probably when the Dolphin Inn was erected. Here they found the mouldered remains of a leather bag, out of which there fell jingling, a parcel of gold rings, containing precious stones in very ancient setting; also some old Indian coins, and other articles of value, the whole of which will perhaps not be known. The workmen beginning afterwards to quarrel about the booty, news of the discovery reached the owner of the estate, who has recovered a part of the property. It consists of the following curious reliques; which have remained buried five hundred and fifty years, as will appear by the sequel; and about seventeen years before the building of St. Peter's College, or the foundation of this university. We shall describe the different articles, as we have seen them in numerical order:—

1. A Sapphire, rudely set in its natural form—in a ring of pure gold: weighing with the stone 4 pennyweights, 9 grains. Such a ring was taken out of the coffin of John de Fontibus, Bishop of Ely, who died 1225.

2. An Amethyst, do. weighing two pennyweights, 8 grains.

3. Ditto, ditto, weighing one pennyweight, 19 grains.

4. Ruby, ditto, weighing twenty three grains.

5. Small gem, unknown, weighing with the ring, 21 grains.

6. Large brooch of pure gold, mounted in silver, the silver being completely mineralized, and converted into a muriate, originally studded with rubies, one of which remains; the whole of curious workmanship;—Its weight equals an ounce, wanting only 23 grains.

7. Small brilliant gold Fleur de Lis broken from some trinket that has disappeared; it is more like the Florentine than the French Fleur de Luce.

8. Piece of Coral set in silver.

9. A collection of silver pennies, of Henry Third, struck in his fifty first year; about which time they seem to have been buried. These pennies were called sterlings, and it was enacted that each of them should weigh 32 wheat corns in the midst of the ears! which is their exact weight at the present moment, weighed against the wheat corn of the present year, in cases where the coins are perfect. Some of them are rather decomposed than worn; and they are now brittle as they were when they were struck—it being usual to break them for small payments. In the reign of Henry the Third, four quarts of Ale sold for a penny, Barley being two shillings per quarter. Upon these pennies the head of the king appears in full face, in front, with the legend Henricus Rex III. or Terci. The reverse has a double cross extending to the edge of the Coin, and three pellets in each quarter. [Cambridge paper.

From a French paper.

COUR ROYALE.

Housseau, and a woman named Marcelle, were condemned to one year's imprisonment by the common tribunal of Trayes for various acts of swindling practised upon ignorant peasants under the pretext of curing their diseases, killing their enemies &c. The Public Accuser thought their punishment too light, and therefore brought the case by appeal before the Cour Royale.

The following are some of the tricks practised by Housseau and his associate:—

They were extremely fond of eating poultry, it appears; for almost every favor which they were to obtain from the devil, and they pretended to have his Satanic Majesty under their controul, was preceeded by the sacrifices of a fat hen, or capon. The head was cut off amidst some horrid incantations, and enclosed in a tin box. This box was buried in the presence of the parties, and in a few days dug up, when a frog usually leapt out.—"There!" said Housseau, "you have gained your wishes—had it been a serpent I should have been sorry for you."

But Housseau's devices were not always so innocent; for in 1813 he was tried before the tribunal of Chartres for an act of compound blasphemy and villany. He persuaded a farmer, who had lost a great many of his cattle that season from disease, that a neighbor (who had given Housseau some offence) had bewitched the animals. The credulous farmer accordingly accompanied Housseau at midnight into 17 church yards, and filled 17 small sacks with earth from each. On their return to the cottage of the peasant the sacks were placed in systematical order on the floor: a due number of the feathered race was killed, and the heads placed on the sacks. The farmer, his wife, and his children, were placed on their knees around the sacks, and ordered to say certain prayers, which they did most devoutly. Suddenly a dreadful voice was heard in the chimney. "I am the Devil," said the voice, "and I am coming among you." The farmer and his wife clung to the knees of the pretended sorcerer, and besought him to stop there. He replied, that he could not arrest the progress of the incantation. The Devil redoubled his cries—the poor villagers renewed their entreaties, and produced the purse which contained their savings for many years. At sight of this Housseau affected to consent with reluctance, and went out and held a parley with the Devil, who consented to accept of money. Housseau then pretended, that by interrupting the grand process nothing could be done against the life of their enemy, and made his bow and retired. The wife of the farmer has been insane ever since.

Although such was the atrocity of Housseau's conduct, the terror of his name as a sorcerer kept back all the material witnesses when he was bro't to trial for the crime. He was convicted merely of being a drawer of cards, imprisoned for five days, and fined in 15 francs.

Under all these circumstances, the public prosecutor brought the case by appeal as already stated before the Cour Royale, and Housseau was speedily condemned to five years imprisonment and a fine of 1000 francs. The woman Marcelle was sentenced to 1 years imprisonment, as an accomplice.

SALE OF A WIFE.

Much indignation has been excited against a man in the Western States who sold his wife for 325 dollars.—Under favour, this is no bad specimen of the state of the market for that article in this country, as the last prices varied in England from sixpence to two guineas; they must be either scarce or of a better quality in the new world. [National Advocate.

The fellows of Baliol College, in Oxford, ordered the gates to be shut on the fast day. Dr. Leigh, the master, said on the occasion, "We are very strict in the observance of this day; we not only fast ourselves, but we make the gates fast also."

ALEXANDRIA:
MONDAY, OCTOBER 20 1817.

We observe in several of the newspapers an article republished from a Norfolk paper, mentioning the names of the persons designated by government to survey the Chesapeake Bay, and select the defensible points—among others the name of major Armistead is given: this is a mistake—it should be lieut. colonel W. K. Armistead.

The London Star, a most intelligent and independent paper, has disproved, from the very terms of the report itself, the assertion that a treaty had been carried into effect under the mediation of Russia, binding the maritime powers to join in concert to effect the submission of the Spanish colonies. We agree with that judicious print that any such interference would be gross impolicy; for we think that there is not in Euclid a proposition more demonstrable than this, that the liberation of South America would tend to the augmentation of the wealth of the nations of Europe more than any other that can happen. In effect the emancipation and independence of that rich portion of the globe would be more to the advantage of Great Britain herself than the possession of it in colonial tenure; and it would give a new and a permanent spur to the industry, the enterprise, and the intellectual pursuits of the whole civilized world.

THE NEW-YORK BATTERY.

In the year 1790 the legislature of the state of New-York made a grant to the corporation of the city of New-York of certain lands, including the Battery, for the purpose of erecting "public buildings and works of defence," but without any power to dispose thereof for any other purpose whatsoever. Nov. 17, 1816, the corporation made a grant of the same land to the United States. This grant recites, that whereas the lands in question are necessary for constructing fortifications for the defence of the port and harbor of New-York, and whereas the mayor, &c. are desirous of contributing all in their power towards the defence of the city, they have agreed to cede their right and title in the premises, and, "for the purposes aforesaid, they give, grant, &c." the lands including the battery, with a proviso and upon the condition that if at any time hereafter the premises shall cease to be used for purposes of fortifications, "or for such other purposes as the public may be immediately interested in," they shall revert to the corporation. In July last, general Scott, the military commandant at New-York, relying on the expressions in the proviso, which are broader than those in the grant of the land, announced to the corporation his intention of erecting certain offices on the Battery for the accommodation of the staff officers, intimating that, as he did not conceive that any legal objection could be made to the measure, he should be disposed to take into consideration any other that might be suggested by the corporation. In reply, the corporation communicated to gen. Scott a vote, in which they expressed a decided wish that the Battery should not be built upon; and, at the same time, observed that the grant being made to the United States for the purpose of fortification, they did not consider the occupation of the premises with public offices within the meaning of the grant.

Without making any reply to this communication general Scott made his preparations and lately actually commenced building on the Battery. The measure having excited much uneasiness in the minds of the citizens, the corporation have taken it into serious consideration, and, after a due deliberation on Tuesday last, unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

"That his honor the mayor make application, by letter, to the president of the United States, requesting him to cause the erecting of buildings on the Battery to be stopped.

"That the street commissioner be instructed to remove all obstructions or buildings erecting on the Battery contrary to law, and that a special committee be appointed to aid and assist that officer in the performance of his duty."

The corporation then passed an ordinance, prohibiting all horses, waggons, or carts from being driven upon the Battery, excepting for the use of the corps of artillery. [Boston D. Adver.

LATE FROM PERNAMBUCO.

Arrived late last night, schr. Morgiana, Lowth, 45 days from Pernambuco, with hides, sugar, molasses, horns and cocoa nuts, to Rodman & Waln. Left ship General Hamilton, Fellows, of New York, taking in cotton, to sail in 10 days, for Havre de Grace; brig Harriet, Cathell, of and for Baltimore, 15 days; Spartan, Sorcle, of and for Boston, 15; General Ward, Whitehead, of N. York, discharging, unc. when to sail; ship America, Lucket, of Alexandria, arrived on the 25th Aug. from St. Salvadore, with 2000 bbls. flour, not having been able to discharge, uncertain when to sail; the schr. Mary Ross, Evans, had arrived at St. Salvadore from Philadelphia, and sailed in company with the America, in search of a market. Markets very low at Pernambuco—flour $11 to 12, or $13 to 15 per bbl. on shore.—Colonial produce very scarce and high.

The day previous to the sailing of the Morgiana, a Portuguese brig of war had arrived from Paraiba and Fernando de Noronha, having on board about fifty four prisoners, among the number the Governor of the latter place, all of whom had espoused the cause of the Patriots, and were brought to Pernambuco, to be made examples of. A new governor had arrived at Pernambuco, with a number of troops, and all things remained quiet; a number of executions had, and were daily taking place.

Editors' Correspondence.

FROM THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

St. Marys, Geo. Oct. 4.

"I am obliged to you for the friendly manner in which you vouched for the veracity of my communication to you of the 5th Aug. Be assured I then advanced nothing but what can be established. The events which have since followed, have fully justified what I then wrote you. Gen. McGregor, and almost every honorable man, has left Amelia island in disgust.

"A commodore Aury, from Galvestown, commands there at present; and it is now openly declared, that Amelia Island is all the territory they want. In the harbor of that place perhaps there are now six or eight prize vessels: amongst the others, a French brig. The people of France have not only reason now to be alarmed, but even on this of the river we may apprehend danger. One half of Aury's force, the whole of which perhaps is 550 men, is composed of brigands from St. Domingo; even a number of the lieutenants of the different vessels are blacks. These are the people who are to revolutionize (it is supposed abroad) the Floridas. It will be a happy thing if this pernicious example be lost on the people of their complexion in our neighborhood, and insurrections might be confined to our unfortunate neighbors on the other side of the river St. Marys."

St Louis, Sept. 13.

Mr Auguste Chouteau, with Mr. De Mun and their companions, after forty-eight days confinement in the prison of Santa Fe, returned on Sunday last, to their rejoicing families and friends.

The American people, and particularly those of the western country, will hear with indignation and astonishment, that their fellow-citizens of the oldest and most respectable families of Missouri, have, on the head waters of Arkansas, within the U. States' limits, been stripped of their property by a Spanish officer, and compelled ignominiously to kiss, upon their knees, the stupid and oppressive mandate which consigned them to chains and a dungeon!!!

This despot of Santa Fe seems to be characterized by ignorance, presumption and brutality. He recalls the remembrance of the soldiers of Cortes, who tyrannized in that country 300 years ago. On the introduction of our townsman he accosted them with a ferocious grimace. "I am glad to see you—you are very welcome—I shall probably enough have your heads cut off." He acted besides, we are told, under the real or pretended belief that the Mississippi continued to be the boundary between the U. States and his catholic majesty. And affected to speak of our governor with contempt for being so badly informed in this respect.

Persons of understanding and manners, in the Spanish province, and indeed individuals of every description, lamented the causeless oppressions which were heaped with so much wantonness on these peaceful and unoffending merchants.—They were engaged as they say and as we fully believe, in their usual pursuits, under a licence from the governor of Missouri territory, and within its heretofore acknowledged boundaries; and certainly on the waters which fall into the Mississipi.

We know not what indemnification can be made to these gentlemen for their personal sufferings, but we are very sure our government will take prompt measures with the Spanish court for the payment of a round sum of money, equal at least in value to the property of which our merchants have been despoiled.

We hope too that the adored Ferdinand will be instructed by this affair to place men of sense if not of humanity at the head of his provinces.

Extract of a letter from a young Kentuckian, in South America, to his friend in Lexington, dated Lima, March 1, 1817.

"The splendor of the palace of the vice-roy in this place is not equal to what I had expected to find it; but the magnificence of the churches is far beyond my powers of description. On the altar of one of the churches, called La Merced, it is said there are gold and silver to the amout of no less than a million of dollars. A crown piece to the Virgin Mary, in another church, cost thirty thousand dollars. Churches, convents, &c. without number. There are also some other edifices of considerable size; but all the labor, riches and taste appear to have been spent upon the churches. In the public squares, convents, etc. there are copper fountains continually spouting fine fresh water. In all the streets running east and west, there is a canal of water which adds very much to the cleanliness of the city. Lima contains a population of about sixty thousand inhabitants composed of ten or twelve thousand Spaniards, and the rest Indians, negroes, and the innumerable mixtures between them and the whites.—The climate is the most delightful you can imagine; it is a continued spring the whole year round; between the coldest and the warmest weather the thermometer does not vary more than 10°.—Every species of fruit grows here in perfection throughout the year; we have at our table, every day, delightful apples, peaches, oranges and pine-apples. It never rains and only two or three instances of its ever having thundered or lightened here, are recorded in the [illegible] this place; on which occasion the citizens ran distracted into the country, kneeled before their Maker, and in the sincerity of their hearts, [illegible] forgiveness in what they consi[illegible] of universal dissolution. [illegible] here produce the most horri[illegible] Callo, the seaport of Lima [illegible] miles distant, was entirely [illegible] bout forty years [illegible] of any degree of [illegible] oftener than one [illegible] ty years, but what [illegible] blangs, are almost as [illegible] as rain in Kentucky.

There has been one of these since my arrival, and it was taken notice of with about one half the concern I have seen excited on a farm in the U. States by the flying of a hawk over a hen roost. In consequence of the earthquakes, the houses have no roofs, such as ours: long strips of wood are laid flat upon the top of the wall, and on them a layer of ashes half an inch thick and this is sufficient to preserve them from the weather, as they never have more than a thick fog, which cannot penetrate their slight roofs. The want of roofs to the houses, gives them a very awkward appearance, and if they were black on the outside instead of white, a stranger arriving from Europe would think that the city had been destroyed by fire. The mildness of the climate and the richness of the soil, have all tended to enervate the inhabitants; on the men it has had the effect to make them weak and indolent in the extreme. The Spaniards smoke cigars, and only exert themselves as far as it is necessary to keep the others in subjection. Perhaps to these causes, which have had such an evil effect on the men, may be attributed the surprising beauty of the women. It is a surprising thing indeed to meet with a young woman that has not the most regular features, fine black eyes, and pretty shape. Their dress is singular, and is almost the first thing that strikes the attention of a foreigner: the stuff of which their outer petticoat is made, is worked in such a manner that it has the elasticity of stockinet; it is belted tight round the waist and fits the body as close as possible, so much so that they can only take very short and deliberate steps, and causes them to reel from one side to the other like a sailor. They do not wear bonnets; an apron of black silk, open before, drawn backwards over the head and arm, covers every thing from the waist up but one eye. Their feet are handsome and extremely small, of which they appear to be conscious; they take pains to show them, and scarcely a young woman of any description is seen in the streets without silk shoes and stockings. They marry at twelve and thirteen; and at five-and twenty they are old, ugly, and not fit to be looked at."

Liverpool Sept. 8.

The accounts from all parts of the country, contain the most cheering intelligence of the state of the crops, and the [illegible] weather which the country has generally enjoyed, during the last week, for ripening and securing the harvest.—We are also glad to observe from the same accounts, that the iron, the woollen, the cotton, the leather, the soap and the candle manufactures, are all rapidly increasing. Every loom, every factory almost in the kingdom, employs more men, or gives them higher pay than it did six months ago. Commerce equally encreases throughout our ports.

The harvest in this neighbourhood, has partially commenced; and from the very fine warm weather we had during the last week, we suppose that it will become general in this neighbourhood and Cheshire, in the course of the present week.

We are happy to observe, the demand for cotton in our market, still continues very brisk; the sales during the last fortnight, amount to about 30,000 bags.

Sept. 10.

There have been imported into Liverpool, from the United States of America, between the 1st Sept. 1816, and the 1st Sept. 1817, not less than 493,514 barrels of flour, which, together with the grain brought from the same country, would be sufficient to load 2,786 vessels of 100 tons each.

EVANGELICAL CLERGY.

Letter from Westphalia, August 23. The Minden Sunday paper, contains a remarkable circular letter to the Evangelic Clergy of both confessions in the Prussian Monarchy, on occasion of the intended celebration of the secular festival of the Reformation in which there is the following passage:

The representation of the occasion and the object of the Reformation, will afford the clergy ample materials for edifying reflections and discourses, calculated to affect the minds of their hearers, without their being tempted to give their sermons a tendency hostile to their non-Evangelic brethren. The spirit of truth which animated the reformers, and in whose energy they began and accomplished the great work, is also a spirit of peace and of love. The fruits of this spirit, according to the exhortations of the apostles, should be kindness, justice and truth. Only on account of the few clergymen who might perhaps forget this, it must be mentioned that in sermons on the Reformation, every expression of bitterness or contempt towards the adherents of another mode of belief, as it would be wholly incompatible with the dignity of the Evangelical Church, would likewise be directly opposed to the expressly declared will of his majesty the king, it being his desire that the pure representation of the spirit of the Reformation, without any mixture of unfriendly expressions towards other confessions, be the general theme on which the clergy in his majesty's dominions shall uniformly preach [illegible] the prescribed choice of texts.

The ministry further observes, that the name of Protestants, significant as it was at the time of its introduction, though it is more adapted to indicate the defence made at that time of the external rights of the Evangelical princes and states in the concerns of religion and church government, than the peculiar spirit and meaning of the Evangelic church; yet even in this last sense occasions various misconceptions, and has, in fact, been here and there mis-employed in this manner in these latter times.

It seems therefore advisable, on more accounts than one, to leave these denominations, Protestant, Protestant Church, to history, to which they belong, & henceforward universally to employ in their stead, especially in religious writings and discourses, the more proper and more generally intelligible terms, Evangelical Church, Evangelical Christians. Luther himself disapproved of all party names. He remonstrates, in his writings against the professors of the Evangelic faith, calling themselves, after his name, Lutherans, and refers them to the sole foundation of the Christian faith, the doctrine of Christ the Evangelist. In the celebration of the approaching high festival of the Church, may the spirit of their Divine Master repose on all faithful laborers in the vineyard of the Lord, and crown their labors with success!

The Minister of the Interior,
V. SHUCKMANN.

Berlin, June 30, 1817.

According to this official declaration, the names Protestant and Lutheran, will, for the future, be disused in the Prussian dominions.

Land for Sale.

IF early application is made, I will dispose of 400 acres of the CEDAR GROVE tract of land. There is surplus timber and fire wood enough on the part I purpose selling to pay, with judicious management, more than half the purchase money, at the price I ask. The situation is healthy, and the land fertile. Contiguity to market is also among its advantages: it being within less than a mile of Mr. Jonathan Janney's mill, where the Alexandria price may be had for grain. Persons wishing to purchase will apply to the subscriber, residing at Cedar Grove, ten miles below Alexandria, and one below Janney's mill.

THE SUBSCRIBER will sell, on reasonable terms, a valuable and productive farm of 600 acres, or thereabouts—being part of the lands of the late Richard Brent, lying on Kettle Run in the county of Prince William, in the state of Virginia—20 miles from the Occoquan Mills—33 miles from Alexandria, and about the same distance from Georgetown and the City of Washington. This farm lies in the centre of an excellant neighborhood—is handsomely situated—abundantly watered, and has upon it an ample proportion of wood. The soil is naturally strong, and a considerable portion of it has for some years past, been cultivated according to the most approved rules of modern husbandry—Possession will be given on the first day of January next. The terms upon which this property will be sold, will be made known upon application to George L. Brent, of Stafford County, Va. or to the subscriber living in Alexandria.

Rich Kenhawa Lands for Sale or Barter

I WILL sell or exchange, for property in this district or its vicinity, a valuable tract of Land in Mason county Virginia, situate on the Great Kenhawa River, at the mouth of Eighteen Mile Creek, distant from Point Pleasant about eighteen miles. This tract binds upon the river, and contains by patent one thousand and fifty acres, a large proportion of which is rich bottom. The title is old, and indisputable, having been located and surveyed by Gen. Washington before the Revolution. What may be considered as adding much to its value is the passage of the western road thro' it. By a reference to Mr. Madison's map of Virginia, the situation of the land may be designated. Apply to Colonel Francis Peyton, or

ALSO,

One other Tract of Land adjoining, containing 606 acres, nearly half in woods—lies well and is well watered—with a great proportion of good meadow land. This tract might conveniently be divided into three or four lots.

ALSO,

One other Tract of Land, containing 432 acres, adjacent to the first mentioned—lies well and well watered—tolerable improvements, with a sufficiency of wood and timber. This tract might be divided into two suitable lots.

A more minute description is thought unnecessary, as no person would purchase without viewing the lands, which can be shewn at any time.

These tracts will be sold as they are, or divided into lots to suit purchasers, and will be sold a bargain, if immediate application be made. Possession of the first and last mentioned tracts can be had at any time the other the first day of January next.
